HYER IS ADVOCATE OF CONSOLIDATION

President of Whitewater Normal Urges Better Rural Schools.

Madison.—Before many war veterans can go to college they must attend normal schools for grade school instruction as a result of the poor country school system in Wisconsin. President F. F. Hyer, of the Whitewater normal school, declared before the senate education and public welfare committee while pleading for consolidated school districts as provided for in an education committee proposal.

"There is one man of 30 years graduating at Whitewater normal from the eighth grade and another of the same age just finishing high school," President Hyer said. "A condition of this kind is due to our practice of maintaining schools of eight and ten students instead of consolidating the districts."

Some country school houses would make good box cars if they were not too wide. President Hyer remarked in his condemnation of the backwardness of the state in building up its country school system. Conditions about Whitewater were described to show that some schools had been built 70 years ago and had not been painted or whitewashed since.

"I went back to the school I attended and found my name still on the wall where I had written it 40 years ago," he illustrated.

By consolidating ten school districts or more, one school house of four rooms could take care of the entire enrollment more efficiently and cheaply than by separate school houses, President Hyer stated. Four teachers could take care of the work ten are required to do before consolidation, he said.

Don't forget Riverside Park opens Saturday, May 14.

Boost Dairying, Is Craig's Plea at Newark Meet

One class of farm industry to be boosted through community cooperative efforts was urged by J. A. Craig, president of the Samson Tractor company during a farm community meeting at the farm of William Ross, town of Newark, Wednesday night.

It was pointed out that Wisconsin should lead in dairy products. The farmers in Newark were urged to agree upon a certain profitable type and then use collective work in production and community advertising.

"Unless Wisconsin farmers in this rich southern section wake up and get together for mutual betterment and advertising, California and the western states will excel this state," predicted Mr. Craig. "If you farmers want Holstein cattle, then all raise Holsteins but boost them together to get the maximum results. One class of industry is going to mean community farm success."

The Newark meeting was well attended, the township having a Progressive community club on agricultural problems. L. A. Marikham, head of the welfare department, also spoke.

Locals Trim "Beards" in Bat Fest--Drop Aristo Games

TRACTORS WALLOP THREE PITCHERS FOR 11 TO 4 WIN

Whiskers and long hair took a terrific tumble in the Janesville bat fest Wednesday afternoon when the Tractors clipped the varied-colored locks of the House of David for an 11 to 4 victory. It took only an hour and 18 minutes to apply the scissors to the bearded tribe while a naughty wind whistled through their tresses. The teams play at Portage Thursday and again here on Friday.

After three straight innings the locals waged a fearful bombardment upon the pitching antics of two visiting slab artists. The second frame was worth money (value set by Chicago Cubs) was scattered to the high winds with four slanting runs. A red haired guy named Vaughn was rushed in at the second and three counters in that stanza and two in the third were shot across the platter he too was "vaughn" out.

Barbers Absent.

From out in the private garden, the smiling face of David called faintly in the fourth to stop the wreckage. Just to show him that all the tallying was not sewed up in his name, the Tractors forced a base on balls in the seventh for good measure.

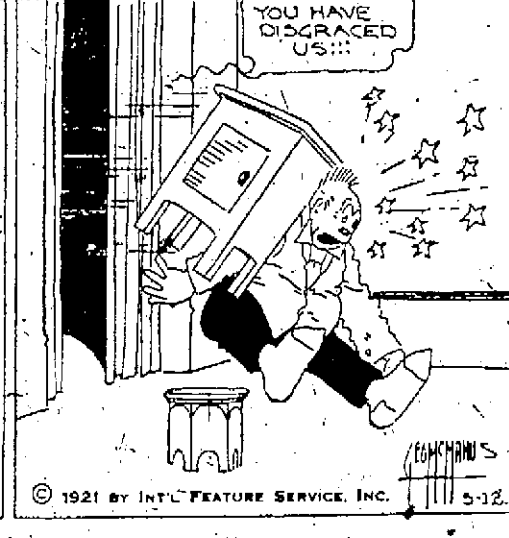

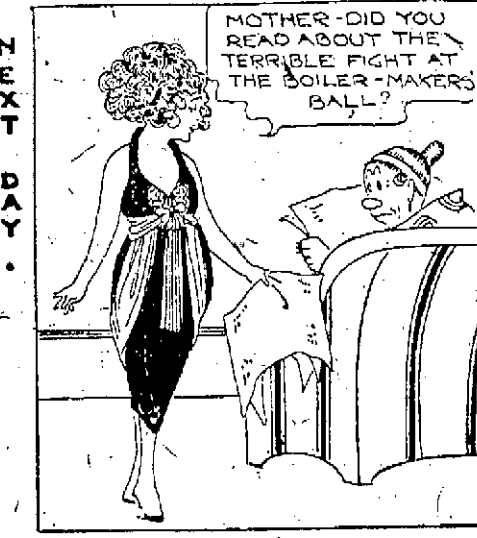

There was a pretty fair crowd out at the fair grounds to watch the game. From the front row, Harry Porter, Tom, that is, the barbers. They declared a boycott; no chance of them doing any business.

There was also present a steady, freshish wind of an aerobically nature. Many times the breezes tore with the pill making it difficult to judge faces and often carrying the ball far into the deep.

Washed Twice Good.

"Slim" Walsh did the twirling for Janesville. Quite a few times, he had something on the egg and it wasn't hair either. That was in all but two

BRINGING UP FATHER

CHICAGO OUTFIT PLAYED "BLACKS?" TWO OTHER GAMES

On information that appears to be well founded that the manager and several players of the Chicago Aristo Giants played the outlawed "Black Sox" in the Windy City last Sunday, the Janesville Tractors have postponed next Saturday and Sunday's games booked with the Giants. In their place, the Whitewater ball club will be seen on the local diamond Saturday. On Sunday, the John Mansville company's ball club, Chicago, will be seen.

Reports first coming through the Chicago papers to the effect that the Giants had played the "Blacks" were followed by investigations through private sources and resulted in a first belief by Manager George Perrin of the locals that at least some of the Aristo players. Yet on a wire from Secretary Fisher of the Chicago league, it was considered wise to postpone the games until the accusations can be sifted thoroughly.

For Protection.

In doing this, Perrin announced that it is to protect the Janesville players if they should ever want to go back into organized baseball. It was also done as a protection to the public.

Owner Glaser of the Giants was here Wednesday conferring with Perrin. He declared that if any of the Aristo players, it was without his sanction or knowledge. The other hand, he said that he had disavowed the manager, Rupert, on the alleged belief that he had lied about the circumstances of the game.

Whitewater Fast.

The Whitewater club is fast this year. It is composed of a number of former "Whitewater" players in the Northern league who remained behind when Charley Moll took his team to the big league. They formed a club of their own with the aid of the men from last year's Whitewater team of the Central state league.

The John Mansville team represents the Chicago branch of one of the largest "Blacks" plants in the world. This club is considered stronger than the Aristo and is a member of the same Chicago league.

Form Senior Ball League

Positive steps toward the formation of a senior amateur baseball league were taken at a meeting in the Gazette office Wednesday night with 26 representatives of three classes of teams present with wads of enthusiasm. The league will be played Wednesday night and Friday evenings at 6:00 with a forfeit clause should a team fail to show up by 5:30; and on Sunday mornings at 9 o'clock. Those on the committee are: Herbert Wolf, K. C. Williams, Columbus, Bake-Rites, Tails, Eagles, Club Billiards and the Moose.

10 Week Schedule.

A committee was appointed to draw up a schedule for a season of 10 games for each team extending the games to July 23. Games will be played Wednesday night and Friday evenings at 6:00 with a forfeit clause should a team fail to show up by 5:30; and on Sunday mornings at 9 o'clock. Those on the committee are: Herbert Wolf, K. C. Williams, Columbus, Bake-Rites, Tails, Eagles, Club Billiards and the Moose.

Pirates Victors in 13 Innings

American League. His own error that permitted two runs to score let the game for Murren and the Chicago White Sox, 3 to 2, to Boston.

Shooper and Moore staged a pitching duel with St. Louis coming out on top of Philadelphia, 1 to 0.

When Ward muffed Schanz's throw on a double steal by Cobb, the Tigers won from New York, 2 to 1. Tygers won from New York, 2 to 1. Cobb made one of the greatest catches of his career pulling down Murren's towering drive.

Celebrating the raising of the world's championship bunting, the Pirates ripped into Washington for a 14 to 1 win.

National League.

In a trick ball game the Cubs doubled up the score on the Phillies in a free for all hitting exhibition. The final score was 13 to 8.

The Superbas of Brooklyn made it two straight from the Reds in a free hitting contest, 6 to 4.

In a lengthy pitcher's battle for 9 o'clock, the Yankees were going good. The Yankees won from Boston, 5 to 1. The Yankees won from Boston, 5 to 1.

Hitting Deak hard toward the end of the game, the Giants beat St. Louis, 4 to 1.

SPORTING BRIEFS

San Francisco--Willie Meehan, local heavyweight, has been matched for a ten round fight with Bill Brennan in Denver, July 2 and Billy Mische in St. Paul, July 10.

Toledo--The boxing commission's new ruling that free admission to boxing shows in the future must be out to the minimum, had its effect Wednesday night when the crowd turned out to see Bryan Downey and Johnny Kleisch in a 12-round bout was less than half large enough to fill the house.

Philadelphia--The United States Navy will be represented by a large squad of athletes at the American Legion field day on Franklin field June 4. Candidates are being assembled at Annapolis where tryouts will be held.

San Francisco--Jake Schaefer of San Francisco won both blocks of Wednesday's play on 4,000 point match of 182 billiards with Edward Scramans, Belgian champion, in 5 1-2 innings. Schaefer won 400 to 275, making the score stand 800 to 328.

Columbus--Stanislaus Zhyzloko took George Kotsenkos in straight falls.

New York--Benny Kauff, suspended outfielder of the New York Giants, on the stand denied charges of stealing an automobile.

Big Early Sale for Title Bout

New York--Although the opening of the public sale of seats for the Dempsey-Carpentier championship contest in Jersey City on July 2, will not begin for several days, the advance reservations assure a record breaking attendance.

Official diagrams of the arena indicate that the amphitheater will seat 50,000 or more spectators. The present plans provide for 35 rows of 550 seats and more than one hundred mezzanine boxes which, it is understood, will be occupied principally by women. Back of the boxes are to be erected four rows of 450 seats and a similar number of 350 rows. These in turn are followed by 20 rows of 325 seats, three rows of $20, 21 rows of $15, 25 rows of $10 and 11 rows of $5.50 seats. In the 4,000 seats already have been reserved.

Chairs for these high priced sections are not confined to local patrons. They come from points in every state, and many from London and Paris.

Carpentier and his party are expected here Sunday, on the steamer La Savole. Carpentier will, after a day or two, go to his training quarters at Manhasset, Long Island.

Leo Hecock and Herman Miller will help Jack Dempsey prepare for his battle with Georges Carpentier July 2.

Dempsey went on the road Wednesday as usual. Later in the day he planned to do some light sparring.

Work of building the outdoor arena is progressing rapidly. A big force of carpenters is at work and within ten days the bleachers and ring will be completed and fenced in.

New Wrangle in Pin Ranks

Warrants for the $528 prizes of the City bowling league for the 1920-21 season as per the records of Secretary H. M. Lampert will be made out Thursday by President Harry V. Ross, to clean up the situation, he said Thursday morning. However, A. J. Nelson, treasurer, declares that he will refuse to issue checks on the grounds that the letter from Melvin Cook, captain of the Samson Tractors, in which he stated he was willing to forfeit three games to the Baker-Rites, should not be ignored.

General Meeting.

"I want to wash my hands of the whole situation," said Ross. "The fellows keep running into me for a decision and I am tired of waiting any longer. Nobody seems to be able to get together on this matter. Nobody appears to know what they want."

It is understood in bowling circles that Nelson's refusal to send out checks will precipitate the situation into a turmoil. The upshot, most bowlers believe, will be to cause the calling of a general meeting of the entire Janesville bowling association.

1-Buck Law Likely to Stay

Madison--Legislation affecting fish and game has practically been completed for this session of the legislature, with few new laws enacted, according to Mark Catlin, chairman of the assembly fish and game committee.

A bill has been passed which insures an open highway to all Wisconsin lakes, and reserves shoreline around the lake for the general public.

It is also likely that the present legislature will endorse the one buck law, prohibiting the shooting of ducks under one year. At present, hunters are not allowed to shoot a duck, but a bill to permit shooting on alternate years is under consideration.

Longer Duck Season.

Two bills to change the open season for deer so as to make the Wisconsin regulations correspond with those of Michigan and Minnesota are before the legislature and are expected to pass.

Another bill has been passed which establishes game refuges in Wisconsin for the protection of native birds and animals.

The law dealing with partridges has been opened up for four days in October, the duck season has been lengthened to December 20, and the goose season to December 30.

Pickering, croppers, sunfish, heads, and catfish have been taken out of the rough fish class and hoop and fyke net fishing prohibited.

H. S. Game at 10 a. m. Saturday

Baseball at Janesville high school will be revived Saturday when the Blues open their first season in several years by taking on Orderville high school at the fair grounds diamond at 10 o'clock in the morning.

Great enthusiasm is reigning in the student body with prospects that a good crowd will pack into the grandstand and bleachers to put the crowning points of victory over.

Thursday afternoon, the highs engage in a practice game with the Knights of Columbus at Fourth Ward park at 4:15. Out of this contest, Coach Reynier expects to be able to pick his squad. The lineup will be announced Friday.

Orderville already has had a good start having defeated the Bake-Rites of this city and Evansville high school.

In the interclass game Wednesday afternoon, the freshmen put a hot one over on the vocational school, winning 23 to 3.

BELOIT LEADS IN COUNTY DIVORCES

Three More Added to List—To Have Own "Divorce Mill" in Future.

There were three Beloit divorce cases up for hearing before Judge George Grimm Wednesday afternoon based on the usual grounds for marital separations with a few sob, bits of evidence of infidelity and then the usual claims by the attorneys as to who shall have the custody of the innocent victims of the court proceedings—the children of the unhappy marriage. There is testimony to be heard as to which parent the children shall be awarded.

Marvin A. Pazel married Cora E. Pazel in Richland Center in 1918. In his divorce complaint the husband alleged his wife was not true to him and deserted his home in Beloit. Their one child was awarded to the father.

Lena Boyce and Orland Boyce were married in Woodstock, Ill., and the wife alleges the husband deserted her in Beloit in 1914. She was granted the custody of the two children.

Minnie Norton was granted the divorce and custody of one child from her husband Merle Norton. She alleged desertion.

Kiwanis Club Backs Chamber

After talks by Lucian O. Holman, manager of the Chamber of Commerce, and John H. Knapp, manager of the Chamber's membership campaign, the Janesville Kiwanis club Thursday voted as follows:

Arrangements are being made for the "christening" of the club which will probably take place May 27 or 28. The club has been organized by John H. Knapp and Lieut. Gov. Tennyson will be present at the ceremony.

The club members have been divided into two groups with Henry Sullivan as captain of the "Juffs" and James Wise of the "Muffs". A check was kept on the attendance for six weeks to see which had the better record. The "Muffs" won and as a result will be entertained at Delavan lake June 9 at the expense of the "Juffs".

A program is being arranged with a dinner at 7 o'clock, baseball game and other games in the afternoon and dancing in the evening. Kiwanians and their wives will be invited.

NO PHONE MERGER WITH RATES ASKED, COMMISSION RULES

In a conference between representatives of the city of Janesville, the Wisconsin Telephone company, the Rock County Telephone company and members of the railroad commission and engineers of the commission the matter of the merger of the companies in Janesville was gone into thoroughly. Roger A. Cunningham represented the city, M. E. Richardson, Patrick Connors and Fred E. Jones appeared for the Rock county and J. P. Krickler for the Bell interests.

Following the conference the railroad commission announced that the high rates applied for to come as a result of the merger would not be allowed. The rate granted would not be above the highest figure now permitted in other cities of the state and the rates applied for are in all cases higher.

Sentiment in Janesville as to the merger was asked. No definite result has yet come from the plan to merge the companies.

Brought Back Memories of Caledonia

A program that touched the heart of the Scotchman was given at the Presbyterian church Wednesday evening under the auspices of the D. V. B. society of that church. The program of Scotch numbers received warm applause from the audience that filled the church auditorium. All participants in the program appeared in costume.

A bag-piper from Rockford, who delighted his hearers with his native music, was the only out-of-town talent of the evening. Janesville people, young and old, composed the rest of the entertainers. Several children appearing in individual numbers scored hits. Agnes Timpany, a lass of about 4 years of age, gave one of the most popular numbers of the evening when she sang "Coming Through the Rye". Donald Richards, young son of Mr. and Mrs. S. F. Richards, played the drum and Frederick Holt, young son of Prof. Holt, sang "The Bonnie Boat". One of Harry Lauder's songs, "Breakfast in Bed on Sunday Morning," John Jardine, Jr., gave a rendition from Robert Burns, "A Man's Man for All That." Robert Ains gave two Scotch readings, and John Mitchell, a typical Scotchman, sang two songs. Virginia Jones also gave a couple of readings and John Jardine, Sr., accompanied with his piano. Mr. McFarland, piano soloist, surprised and delighted his audience with his musical ability. He proved to be one of the most popular entertainers of the evening. Groups of songs were given by two groups of two girls each. Marjorie Earle and Gladys Robbins appearing together and Ella Lamb and Jessie McFarlane.

The program was opened and closed with music by the Italian orchestra, composed of four Janesville men. The audience joining in the singing of "Auld Lang Syne" made a fitting closing to this unusual program.

A small admittance fee was charged to the program, the proceeds to be used for the D. V. B. girls for local and foreign relief and uplift work.

STILLS IN PRIVATE HOMES ARE ILLEGAL

Moonshining at home, even though the product is not to be sold, is the opinion of Attorney General William Morgan holds in an opinion just received by S. G. Dunwiddie, district attorney here. Mr. Dunwiddie was given a ruling to be used in connection with the Charles Wheaton case. Wheaton is charged with having operated a still in a large still in the "Happy Hollow" district.

Sheriff Cash Whipple confiscated the still but did not find evidence of any of the moonshine having been sold, although it is alleged it was used for home consumption.

The manufacture, transportation or sale of liquor, under the Wisconsin law, is illegal, Mr. Morgan holds.

SUPERSTITIOUS CRY WARNINGS FOR TOMORROW

Friday is the 13th. Beware! While most people are superstitious to some extent, whether they admit it or not, and still knock wood or are chagrined when they break a looking glass, Friday the 13th seems to be passing from its pedestal as the most mysterious of days. There used to be a time when most people were extremely cautious of what they did or what engagements they had on that day, but the advance of civilization is changing things.

It was not so long ago that seamen, conceded to be the most superstitious of all peoples, refused to go to sea on Friday. Up to a few years ago, none of the great liners in ocean traffic could leave port because of this prevailing feeling among the sailors. Whenever Friday happened to fall on the 13th, thirteen in itself being considered the most unlucky number, only the bravest of the brave would venture from sight of land. The first act to change this custom was taken by the managers of the American line of steamers some six years ago when they decided to take the heavy ocean by its vixen sending one of their ships out on Friday the 13th. For the entire trip from New York to Southampton the sailors were in tremors, but nothing happened and the superstition was broken.

The common belief that Friday is an unlucky day is traced back to the time of Christ. It is probably associated with the Crucifixion.

Rock County Court Guards Estates

It is a well known fact that the Probate Judge of this county is very careful to allow no unfair claims to stand against an estate.

The Trust Company cannot collect its fee for handling an estate until the Probate Judge examines their report and allows the claims.

It makes no difference who is the executor of an estate, the law fixes the charges to be made and they cannot be higher.

When the cost is the same in both cases, why not choose the Trust Company?

GERMANY'S SURRENDER AIDS WORLD TRADE.

There seems to be a general acceptance of the statement that the surrender of Germany and the payment on June 1 of the first installment of the reparations account will stabilize business all over the world. It will have a tendency to increase the value of foreign money and give added buying power to the nations heretofore on the brink of disaster with hesitation about buying or the active operation of industry.

Accepting as she has, Germany will find it necessary to devote her whole energy to the industrial development of the nation and intensive effort to meet domestic as well as foreign debts. With the end of the war now certainly in sight between America and Germany we may revive our commercial relations. Germany, in accepting, also has ended the war not only in the matter of the payments for damages but for the other collateral demands of the allies—trial of the authors of the war, surrender of arms and war material to the full, and the full and complete admission of defeat and her own responsibility.

It is the first confession on her part that she was ever at fault. That attitude too will help her relations with the world generally and tend to re-establish her as one of the world's nations and not a mere outlaw.

AID THE SOLDIER MEMORIAL.

In its effort to raise the fund for the establishment of a memorial to the soldiers who went from Rock county into any and all branches of the service, the Kiwanis club should have the support of the whole people. There should be appropriations from both the city and county to this fund.

It is unfortunate that the city in its rigid demand for economy and that every dollar paid out should be for some most highly necessary purpose and for some great public need, is not in a position at this time to appropriate about $24.39 for the memorial.

However, the public will make it up by its great generosity and Rock county has never failed at any time to meet any call.

ATTACKING THE PRESS.

When the first newspaper was printed and it stepped on someone's corns, the bewigged citizen early shook his head and remarked that "You cannot believe anything that is in the papers." Governor Blaine, of Wisconsin made the same Delphic utterance the other night in a speech he was releasing in a church. Others, greater and far more erudite than he, others far less learned and less of the world than he, others simpler and wholly out of politics have repeated this when they have read something that did not suit their fancy. So the statement of the governor may be true but it is not original. Of course it is no more true because a governor said it than when his prototype, the soap box orator, enunciated these words in perfervid language. For instance, the Gazette with scores of other papers printed a long message from the governor. Can the public rely on that? But why go on? To paraphrase the language of Daniel Webster when replying to the attack on Massachusetts: "The press of Wisconsin: there it stands! It needs no encomium."

But what the governor also said in his peevish attitude toward the press was that "The ownership of the press of Wisconsin is largely in the hands of absentee landlords." Meaning, we take it, that people outside the state owned the most of the newspapers published in it. Of course that is not true again. There is only one conspicuous example of absentee ownership in one paper in the largest Wisconsin city—a paper that crooks the pregnant hinges of the knee to the governor on all occasions. Outside ownership in part may be in two other newspapers of the state. But there are 650 that are owned by men and women who live in their communities, have an intense interest in the building up of their locality, an abiding faith in and loyalty to, state and nation, have built up institutions, are employers of thousands of skilled persons, and have heavy pay-rolls. They contribute in effort and action to the betterment of all. These men of Wisconsin in the newspaper business are at home in their own printing offices. The newspapers of Wisconsin are their own best answer to the outbursts of the disturbed and they can afford to smile at such nonsense, even when uttered by so great a person as a governor.

THE PARLOR LONG-HAIRS DO NOT STAND THE GAFF.

Choking sobriety cause a large hurdle in the voices of the derelict I. W. W.'s, as they sing the sinful songs of their ritual these days. There is a drooping of the shoulders and a sort of tail-between-the-legs slink to those who in erstwhile days were flaunting the red flag of hate and destruction and calling for the rule of the proletariat. THE ADVERTISING FARMER

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Washington, D. C.—Advertising in the newspapers offers a way out of present difficulties for many farmers in the opinion of students of the farm-marketing problem, of which few of them are taking advantage.

It is noticeable that merchants and manufacturers, although most of them are facing reduced sales and a falling scale of prices, are not cutting down on their advertising. Many of them on the contrary, have increased their expenditures for newspaper space, realizing that this is necessary to counteract the tendency toward a slump in buying. American business spends on an average about two million dollars a day in advertising, but the volume of sales averages about a hundred million dollars a day. The two million dollars is the regulator and stimulator of the flow of the hundred million. The way in which the individual business man uses his share of the two million determines very largely what is to be his share of the hundred million.

This is a fact which the farmers, as a class, are just beginning to grasp. The farmer, for the most part, produces a simple raw material, which may always be sold at a market price by merely hauling them to the nearest market. Unlike the merchant and the manufacturer, he does not face a competition which is capable of driving him from the market, nor does he have to create a demand for his product. A bushel of potatoes is always worth something, and people will always need potatoes.

So the farmer has reigned in the past. He ranks among the producers of fundamental necessities. In fact, he produces the most fundamental necessities of all. Only wood, steel and other basic materials of industry can compare with food in this regard.

The producers of steel do not advertise. The demand for steel is certain, just as is the demand for food. But the producers of steel and of most of the other basic materials of American industry are organized and do control them and the farmers. If the potato growers were organized, they would be in the same strong position as the producers of iron and petroleum and lumber. But the farmer is in no such position. He has almost no control over the market price of the staple commodities which he produces. Some efforts are now being made by farmers to obtain such control by holding crops and by making agreements as to how much of a given commodity shall be produced. These efforts will doubtless grow in strength and extent, but so far they have not produced any striking results, as is shown by the present economic situation of the farmer, who is bearing the brunt of the fall in prices.

What advantages has the farmer to counter-balance these disadvantages? He has all of the right of free competition. If he will only use them, he has the right to produce anything he pleases. And sell it anywhere he can for the best price he can obtain. For example, the price of corn may be down, but if he can produce a high grade of seed corn and advertise it in such a way that he can convince others of its excellence, he may be able to sell it for a very high price. Again, beef, and hides may be down, but breeding stock and breeding service are things for which a special market at a special price may be created. There are thousands of suburbanites who are starting in the chicken business this spring, for example, and who will pay good prices for hatching eggs, young chickens, and by-product stock.

The possibilities and methods of farm advertising are ably discussed in a booklet on the subject which has been published by the South Dakota State Agricultural College in collaboration with the United States Department of Agriculture. This publication especially emphasizes the opportunities of selling through advertising special products such as seed and breeding stock, and especially the enormous opportunity of appealing directly to the consumer through the want-ad columns of the daily papers.

"Subscribers read the want-ads," this bulletin says, "in fact, many of them read the advertisements first." A study of the want-ads which run continuously in any strong daily paper reveals the fact that farmers are in that way selling the greatest variety of things, including things which it would be difficult to sell in any other way. Hatching eggs, young chickens, young tomato and other plants for setting out, cuttings for starting hedges, manure for use in flower gardens, special quality fruit, comb hatching rabbits, nut cider, strawberries, and a few of the things which are being marketed successfully through want-ads by farmers in one paper in one city.

There now exist near all large cities farms which use advertising almost as thoroughly and scientifically as do merchants. Such farms usually have names, such as Sunnybrook or High View, which sound well and look well in print. This name is apt to be displayed in large letters on the highway nearest the farm, and also on its barns, its wagons and trucks. These farms usually make a specialty of neat and attractive appearance and treat motorists and other visitors politely. Such a farm will have an advertisement of some sort in the nearest paper all the time. It has discovered that with a little enterprise almost anything that has good value can be sold at a good price, and that a steady revenue may be made to flow in, quite independently of the staple crops. The South Dakota bulletin describes the operations of one large farm which sells 90 percent of all its products by mail through advertising direct to the consumer. This farm, for example, sold 300 bushels of alfalfa seed at a net profit of $700, through a ten-word want-ad, the cost of advertising being $17.00. Such farmers are not among the bankrupts.

Despite such successes, and despite the fact that almost every farm product has been sold through advertising and by mail, the proportion of farmers who make any use of advertising remains small. This no doubt is because they are not accustomed to it, have never considered the possibilities of the thing.

The South Dakota bulletin describes at some length the composition of advertisements, but the farmer who wants to insert an ad in the nearest local paper will usually find the men in the newspaper office ready to help him in this matter. If he can tell them the facts, they can make the ad wood and write a piece for Bill's paper just reeking with gore, and get a dollar or two—these were the examples that made I. W. W. fingers itch and the mouth to slaver with anticipation of the glorious day when the poor thrifty fool who had toiled and saved would have to cough up to the unwashed.

But Bill Haywood has gone to Russia to get in with some of the gold. The men who bore the brunt of the fight made by the I. W. W. are either in prison or the remnant is called upon to raise $75,000 to pay the forfeited bail which the pink and yellow members with the long hair and the poetic vision of a proletariat world, have skipped. The I. W. W. claimed some 700,000 members or was it 7,000,000? One of the leaders lately stated that they had about 7,000 now. With the literary chaps in Russia and Leavenworth, the few remaining have fled the sabotage camp.

Thus ends the dream of One Big Union. Labor—the real labor that is represented in the American Federation—has no relation to or with this excrement on the world's surface. It capitalized only discontent and failure and hopelessness and hate. It was joined by a few of the parlor variety of bolshevik who spent the money of the misguided members in high living and disseminating Marxian literature. They could not think of going to prison and they fed. The bag holders are the ones who are left to pay the bail forfeit, or serve the sentence.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

TIED.

Tired! Tired! That I know
Is tired of being on the go.
Work can play me out, but then,
Morning finds me glad again.
To go back to my old place
All the cares which fill my place,
But the wanderer about
Somehow seems to wear me out.

Weakness is what he knows
When the day of rest comes on.
Tired of all the pleasures which
Cought to make a lifetime rich;
Tired of eating food at night,
Tired of dazling lights and bright,
Tired of being asked to roam,
Wishin' he could stay at home.

Pleasure-seekin' wears me more
Than the goals we struggle for;
None becomes so tired as he
Who forever wants to be
Out where all is bright and gay,
Spendin' all his hours in play;
Joy is only good for men
When they find it now and then.

Week's a better friend than play,
Times us in a different way;
Sleep remains a soothing balm
For the weary back and arm.
But it's difficult to find
Comfort for the tired mind.
An' it's true beyond all doubt,
Pleasure-seekin' wears you out.

MARCEL'S STATISTICS.

Sixty per cent of the people who say that they talk French are liars.

Only 30 per cent of the married men are happy.

Only 5 per cent of the entire population belong to "society."

Most of the rest think that they belong or think that they can convince you that they belong.

Our bureau has found only fifty-seven women in the whole United States who did not care about clothes and forty-eight of those confessed that they were fond of nice hats.

Mail service has been partially re-established in Russia. Over here we are more fortunate. Mr. Hays has almost entirely re-established it.

A great musician recommends music as an aid to digestion. After eating corned beef and cabbage at night crank up the gramophone and play "I'm Dreaming My Heavenly Home Today 'Till I've Been Before."

Who's Who Today

POST WHEELER.

Post Wheeler has recently been named assistant counselor of the United States embassy in London. After his appointment he made a brief visit to Washington and then left for London to take up his new duties.

The diplomatic game is not a new one to Wheeler, as he has been at various times secretary to the American embassy at Tokyo and secretary to the embassies at St. Petersburg, at Rome, Stockholm.

Wheeler is also an author. Among his works are "Reflections of a Bachelor," "Russian Wonder Tales," "Love in a Mist," poems; "The Writings of the Tatars," and interesting things about the Tatars in general.

In addition to writing books, Wheeler was the Moscow and Petrograd correspondent of the Westminster Gazette and the New York Evening Post. He was editor of the New York Press from 1890 to 1900.

He was born in Oswego, N. Y., August 6, 1858. He received degrees from Princeton University of Pennsylvania and Sorbonne, Paris.

State Press Comment

The London Chronicle charges that Mr. Harding "invented the hideous normalcy." Nonsense! The dictionary said it long before he did. —Milwaukee Sentinel.

There is no doubt that much of the recent talk about raising the cost of living is based upon prices received by the manufacturer and farmer. Some of this great increase has been reflected in retail prices, but not enough to stimulate buying to the extent that it must be stimulated before there can be a return of real prosperity. —Koshoh News.

It doesn't seem probable that Ireland will ever be an independent nation but a few years ago it didn't seem probable that prohibition would be the law of the land in the United States either. You never can tell. —Wausau Record-Herald.

Every reduction in the price of living necessities virtually amounts to an increase of pay for wage earners. And this is a point that can not be ignored in discussing revised pay problems. —Oshkosh Northwestern.

It seems almost impossible to make legislators realize the first principle of taxation, which is that taxes come from the pockets of every one and not from the pockets of the few who have more money than the majority. The taxes may be paid directly or they may be paid indirectly but they are paid by the people, and all the people just the same. —Rhinelander News.

LOOKING BACKWARD

FORTY YEARS AGO

May 12, 1881.—There are only 10 prisoners in the county jail now. Of these, only 3 are to be tried in the Circuit Court, one for robbing and the other for a statutory offense. The others are for drunkenness and disorderliness. The only woman is Kate Lynch, who is working in the kitchen. "The Gallery Slave" was given last night, the Opera house being crowded.

THIRTY-ONE YEARS AGO

May 12, 1890.—Rev. E. L. Eaton gave a talk on eschatology last evening at the Court street church. His topic was "Probation After Death." Thirty-nine of the stores of the city have agreed to close at six o'clock on Tuesday and Friday evenings instead of remaining open until eight. Burglars have been visiting several homes lately.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

May 12, 1901.—Sunday.

TEN YEARS AGO

May 12, 1911.—The meeting of the stockholders of the new Janesville Park association met last night. Mayor John C. Nichols was appointed temporary chairman and F. S. Sheldon secretary. A nominating committee was named to select candidates for officers and will report at the next meeting. It is expected that there will be auto races at the park in July.

SORE EYES AND VISION

Ordinary acute conjunctivitis (inflammation of the membrane lining the eyelids and covering the eyeball) does not impair the eyesight. Even severe epidemic inflammation of the eyes (often called "pink eye") does not impair vision. It is carried out of the clear covering of the sight (the cornea) from cinders or other foreign bodies or from wounds, often leave serious impairments of vision, by reason of distortion of the cornea and the globe of the eye from scar tissue.

The severe purulent or pus-producing inflammation of the eyes of the newborn caused by gonorrheal infection and known as ophthalmia neonatorum, if not promptly and skillfully treated by the physician or oculist, is likely to lead to blindness—this disease is the cause of the blindness in about one-fifth of all the blind in public institutions—the innocent reap the punishment which the guilty parent has, for the moment, escaped.

In certain parts of the country a very contagious, chronic, slowly progressive eye inflammation is prevalent, commonly called "red sore eyes," "granulated eye lids" or "trachoma." Physicians as trachoma, which always impairs vision more or less, and sometimes terminates in total blindness. In this condition there is usually more or less of the chronic eye disease, which is light, sticking together of the eyelids mornings and irritation of the lining of the lids.

It must not be supposed that every obstinate lid inflammation in which the lids are called "granulated" is trachoma, for granulations occur in other eye inflammations which are not of serious import. But in districts where trachoma occurs, routine examinations of school children by the health authorities or school physicians often reveal early or mild cases of trachoma among the children.

Sometimes trachoma begins subtly, like ordinary conjunctivitis or sore eyes, and the trouble persists even after the usual duration (a few days) of ordinary conjunctivitis, and is not amenable to the simple remedies which relieve ordinary conjunctivitis, such as cold moist compresses and boric acid solutions of the eyelids with boric acid solutions.

Free hospitals for trachoma patients have been established in Kentucky, Tennessee, West Virginia, and North Dakota, where the disease happens to be especially frequent, through the interest of the United States public health service and the various state health departments. Every health officer is prepared to give information about such free hospitals.

(Any reader can get the answer to any question by writing the Janesville Gazette, Information Bureau, Frederick J. Haskin, Director, Washington, D. C. 20540, and enclosing a return address and two cents in stamps for return postage. All replies are sent direct to the inquirer.)

Q. What is meant by "A," "B" and "C" vitamins? S. H. E.
A. Vitamins stand for certain substances which have recently been discovered and are believed to be necessary for the satisfactory development of the body and for its protection from certain diseases. The vitamins are now believed to be of at least three kinds. One is soluble in fat, and is, therefore, usually referred to as "fat-soluble-A." The other two, "B" and "C," are soluble in water, and are therefore often called "water-soluble-B" and "water-soluble-C." The least vegetables, such as spinach and cabbage, are especially rich in fat-soluble "A," orange and tomato juice in water-soluble "B," and all vegetables and fruits in water-soluble "C." It is not correct, however, to say that the diet would necessarily be lacking in vitamins if vegetables and fruits were not used, for fat-soluble "A" is abundant in milk and its products, and water-soluble "B" in grains, particularly in the germ of the portion of the grain most frequently used. It is true that unless vegetables and fruits are regularly used the various kinds of vitamins are almost sure to fall below the desired amount.

Q. When was Jewish New Year (Rosh Hashana) T. E. N.
A. The Jewish New Year (Rosh Hashana) in 1921 was observed from sundown Monday, Sept. 13, to sundown Tuesday, Sept. 14.

Q. Will the distance that the stream stands from an electric wire make a difference in the possibility of shock if the water is thrown on the wire? E. J.

A. The Bureau of Standards says that if a stream of water is thrown upon high tension wires at close range there is considerable hazard from the possible conduction of electricity by the stream of water back to the men holding the nozzle. If, however, the stream of water be thrown from a distance such that the water breaks up into drops before coming in contact with the electrical conductors, there is little danger, as such a stream of water is non-conducting.

Q. Did Mrs. Cuthill have bridesmaids when she married General Washington? J. W. K.
A. Martha Washington had three bridesmaids.

British Minister to Wed His War-Time Secretary

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

London.—Sir Arthur Griffith-Boscawen, minister of agriculture, who has just been returned to parliament from Taunton borough, is to marry his former private secretary, Miss Phyllis Dereham, a volunteer war worker. The wedding is to be in August. Sir Arthur is 51 years old and a widower. Miss Dereham was educated at Eastbourne and in Paris. During the war she was employed in the agricultural department where she won the promotion to a private secretaryship, serving under her prospective husband. Later she yielded her place to a former soldier.

THE GIRL WHO HAD NO CHANCE

By Marion Rubincam

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS

Ruth O'Neil and Myra Weir have been chums from childhood. When they graduate from the high school at Janesville they plan to go to the city together. Myra is to study, if she feels like it, and Ruth to take a business course, since she must support her family. But Ruth's father is taken sick and the money to send Ruth must be used to send him South. The girl feels that her one chance to amount to anything is lost.

Tim Turner, who is in love with Ruth, asks her to marry him, but she refuses, as they are both so poor. "I'm sure I can do it," she says, "I'll make enough money to marry her, and of course see much of Myra, who is staying with a well-to-do cousin. Ruth at first is glad that her two best friends are each other, but gradually learns to distrust Myra, who is becoming a ruthless little tyrant. Myra tries to make Tim fall in love with her.

CHAPTER XXXI. SUCCESS.

In this state of uncertainty Ruth spent most of the winter. She did not know whether Tim was lost to her, and she had no way of telling. He wrote once that he had received a small raise, again that he was doing very well and expected still more money. Neither time did he mention any amount. But said some time that the cost of living in the city was very high, that he had not been able to save, and occasionally he mentioned owing small bills.

Ruth was doing very well financially. That is, she had enough people in her house to cover the expenses of it, she sent money several times to her mother and father, and was glad to know that it went for clothes they had to have. She was obliged to buy herself a few inexpensive things, and she was still hoping to be able to pay their fare home and save enough over the summer to go to the city in the fall.

So matter stood when the first warm breezes came, when the snow melted and the sun came warmly through the generally misty, muddy period that always precedes the great burst of sun and green grass and flowers, and that means spring.

In the city spring never comes so prettily. Snow is cleared away, washed out of sight down sewers, before it has had time to do more than grow dirty—and Myra said, "I tell dirty from the air. Emily broke down early in March and went away to a sanitarium.

"I always manage to get ill at Lent," she observed as she lay among pillows in her fuzzy little French bedroom. "There's nothing to do then but get sick and live on orange juice. Oh, Myra, this is an awful sanitarium! I'm going to be here for weeks, they give you hard tack and call it health food, and save electric bills by sending you to bed at sundown, and call it good for you. Oh, the crimes done in the name of cure!" Myra laughed, and offered to "do her hair."

Emily left finally, rolled up in her fur coat, and attended by the most devoted of her many admirers. She looked 40, and her hair was thinning. "They won't give me a henna treatment, either, Bob," she wailed as she put on her hat to leave. "Why can't sanitariums be frivolous?"

Heart and Home Problems

BY ELIZABETH THOMPSON.

Letters May be Addressed to Mrs. Thompson, in Care of the Gazette.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl 18 and have a girl friend 20. I have a car and am in town nearly every day to do some shopping. Every time I go I ask this friend to go with me, but her mother always comes before, and she won't let me go. I have no objection to her going with us sometimes, but when we have a crowd of other girls with us, naturally we would rather go by ourselves.

Whenever the car is in the shop or for some other reason I have to go for some other reason, her mother doesn't go. Of course she is imposing upon me. My own mother doesn't go because she knows we would rather be by ourselves.

Could you give me some suggestion as to how I can ask this girl to go places with me without her mother going, so that her mother won't know that I don't want her to impose upon me.

CRANKY.

The only way I can see to keep the girl's mother from going along on your trips to town is to tell her girl there will not be room for her mother. Do not lie, of course, but when several girls are going you can make the excuse without offending the mother. I entirely sympathize with you in feeling that the mother is intruding. It would be all right for her to go occasionally, but she should not invite herself every time.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a married woman of 30 and have seven children. I was married when I was 15. My husband is very unfaithful to me. He goes out at night with other women, I am sure.

I love him as much as I did when I married him. It almost breaks my heart to think of him with other women.

You will have to court your husband all over again. Follow the same tactics that you did before you were married. Look as pretty as possible and cater to his tastes. Talk about subjects you know will interest your husband. Draw him into conversation.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Editor Gazette:

From the tone of several letters published recently in the Voice of the People it appears that certain citizens living in the vicinity of Washington street and Linden avenue have become greatly exercised over the dancing pavilion under construction on the old Dick property. The principal objections are the lowering of real estate values, "hell night music," "roaring of automobiles," and disturbance of hospital patients, "a block and a half distant."

As a representative of the owners of the Dick property and as one vitally interested in the success of this never venture as well as in the development of thirty-six acres of first ward property, the writer wishes to reply to the objections in the same spirit in which these objections were made.

In the first place the builders of the dancing pavilion have appropriated real estate values of considerable first ward property with rapid ready for filling. It might be interesting if the objectors would compare this piece of ground with the property of the same value in the vicinity of Washington street, Magnolia, Oakhill and Linden avenues. Will, before many weeks have passed, be looked upon as an asset to the city and that these people who do not care to drive to distant places of amusement may, with their families or out of town friends, find it desirable to have a place where they may be pleasantly and altogether satisfactorily entertained.

Instead of watching our citizens driving twenty or thirty miles away to other cities, let us have an evening of enjoyment, will it not be better to find the recreation seekers coming to Janesville from Edgerton, Evansville, St. Albans, Geneva or Madison?

The management is open to suggestion or criticism, and shall be pleased to entertain any recommendations for amendments or changes that will be in keeping with the policy of the "Phon."

C. L. RILEY.

Shoppers—Mr. Henry Schmeidler, with his family, and Mrs. D. Cox, Beloit, and Mr. and Mrs. John Thraasher and family were over Sunday callers at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Mike Schmeidler, Charles and Schmeidler took a load of logs to Chicago and visited his son there over Sunday. Mike Schmeidler killed and dressed a mammoth hog for Mr. Vandenberg the other day, weighing over 700 pounds. A large gathering of representative citizens of Shoppers gathered in the Haggart hall on Monday evening to make arrangements for the suitable commemorative day of Memorial Sunday. Various committees were appointed, the names of which will appear later. Charles Schmeidler presided, and Mrs. G. Duet acted as secretary.

The Congregational and Methodist churches of Shoppers were well represented at the Rock County S. S. convention held in Evansville over Saturday and Sunday last. Rev. W. L. Wille, pastor of the Methodist church, was in Sharon Monday, calling on an old friend there, a superannuate of the church—Mother's day was suitably observed at both churches last Sunday morning. Only three survivors are now left in Shoppers to tell the story as actual witnesses. Memorial services will be held in the Congregational church on Sunday morning, May 22nd, and the Methodist address delivered in the Methodist church the next day. Mrs. Giles Waring, who has been confined to the house all winter, is now better and able to go out again. The mid-week services in both churches are now held on Wednesday evenings at 7:30.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Woodberry and daughters from Hillsdale, Wis., visited at the home of Mrs. Woodberry's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Atkinson, on Sunday afternoon, returning home in the evening. Mr. and Mrs. Wills took supper at the home of Mrs. Wills' sister, Louis Steinboagen on Tuesday. The Woman's Foreign Missionary society of the Methodist church met with Mrs. G. Kugel on Wednesday afternoon, and was largely attended.

I am feeling under obligation to him and wish to repay him in some way. On one occasion we were talking of hand-embroidered handkerchiefs and he mentioned that he had always wanted a real "home embroidered" handkerchief, but had no feminine relative to make it for him. I remembered this and as I am very expert at the work I would like to send him one with a little "thank you" note if it would be correct.

Is it my place to write a note of thanks? PUZZLED. I would not advise sending the handkerchief. You should, however, write a thank you note. It would be correct to say that you hope the young man will visit your city and will come to see you if he does.

street as well as on Milwaukee avenue.

Questions concerning management, and the time of opening and closing hours are matters that must be left to the discretion of the persons responsible for the success of the enterprise, who will be governed by the opinions of a representative class and not by a corps of joy-hunting night riders. Concerning Sunday dancing the law prohibiting the same will be as strictly adhered to as all laws controlling any legitimate business.

On the other hand there are in-judicious possibilities in the times for the use of a community center through community enterprise. The remodeling of the old house and the building of the pavilion are merely the nucleus of a community center. Important steps have been taken toward the organization of an Automobile club and a Tennis club, and the construction of tennis courts and a baseball diamond. The use of the community center will be opened free to the public, and gladly donated for any civic, church, club or other organization. With the assurance of hearty cooperation from those individuals and organizations most concerned with the welfare of Janesville, it is probable that the new arena, located by Washington street, Magnolia, Oakhill and Linden avenues, will, before many weeks have passed, be looked upon as an asset to the city.

NEWS AND CLOSING MARKETS

CATTLE FEEDING MARKETS

accelerated additional selling and further impairment of prices during the morning on the stock exchange today. Among highgrade cattle, declines ran from 2 to 6 cents. The featured issues, such as Studebaker, U. S. Rubber and Bosch Magneto were 1 to 2 points lower. Lower price levels for shipings and half a score of unclassified stocks yielded 1 to almost 2 points. Panics and minor falls of the commodity market were noted at the close of the point. Sugars hardened on the higher prices quoted for the refined products, and passenger fares compared more and more strident.

Virtually every division of the list, excepting coppers and utilities, contributed to the decline. The heavy price drop at the opening of today's stock market. Steels again were most vulnerable with the foreign oils. Wares and kindred wares had been added further pressure with some of the tobacco and food specialties. American Writing Paper suffered and International Paper reflected their troubles in that industry. Rails were full, but reactionary under lead of the coal slump, declined to the disadvantage. Foreign centers were variably higher.

Rails extended their declines in the afternoon. Shipping, Southern, Northern, Canadian, Pacific and Baltimore and Ohio showed especial pressure. The close was heavy.
